

Sustainable Sourcing of Oils & Fats

With the participation of HAS University

This course deals with the sustainable sourcing of oils and fats in a complex world. The course will give you insight into the actors and influencers that play a role in the supply chain. It brings you up to speed with all aspects related to the sustainable sourcing of oils and fats and with tracking sustainable materials through the supply chain. Relevant issues will be addressed, concerning either upstream or downstream industries.

26 June 2018 - BlueCity, Rotterdam

Learnings

At the end of the course day, you will have an overview of the current relevant multinational dialogues and their importance. You will be able to take that dialogue further within the supply chain. You will thus gain more insight into the implications of current developments related to the sustainability of oils and fats for your daily business. Furthermore you will be able to integrate the developments into your own work and communications.

Course leader and keynote speakers

- Eddy Esselink, course leader, works at MVO and is responsible for the Sustainable Sourcing and Development Programme.
- Judith Murdoch, from Murdoch Associates in London, specialises in corporate social responsibility and sustainability and is experienced in the field of oils and fats.
- Marnix Wolters, lecturer in Sustainability from HAS University.
- A well-known NGO will be present to share and discuss opinions.

Programme and registration

For details about the course program (8:30 - 17:30 hrs) look at our website: www.mvo-academy.nl.

The course fee is € 425 (ex VAT) for MVO member companies and € 595 (ex VAT) for non-MVO member companies. The fee covers lectures, course materials, certificate, drinks, lunch and snacks. Registration is limited to 20 people.

You can register by filling in the registration form available on www.mvo-academy.nl. For more information, please contact MVO Academy by e-mail: academy@mvo.nl, or by phone: +31 79 363 4350.

Participants

The course is open to all employees from companies in the oils and fats industry and related companies in the fields of food, feed, technology and energy.

Participants may be new CSR managers as well as starting or experienced employees in other fields such as sales, marketing, product development and processing, wishing to learn more about sustainable development. Furthermore the course will be interesting for employees from certification bodies, sector associations, consultancy organisations or (non-) governmental organisations.

Level

The course is at BSc level; basic background knowledge is required. Participants who are not familiar with the basics of the oils and fats supply chain are recommended to first attend the MVO Academy Course: 'Basics of Oils and Fats'. The working language of the course will be English. Participants will receive a certificate on successfully completing the course.

E-learning

Participants can update their basic knowledge of oils and fats through the e-learning at MVO Kenniscentrum. Go to www.mvo-kenniscentrum.nl and find out about the supply chain and more.

About MVO and the MVO Academy

MVO represents the companies in the oils and fats industry in the Netherlands, the industry being one of the main agribusiness sectors in the Netherlands.

We are dedicated to supporting a sustainable and internationally competitive supply and distribution chain. Within MVO Academy, we aim to spread knowledge about oils and fats and thus contribute to a constructive dialogue between the supply chain actors, (future) employees, clients, partners and stakeholders.
